TRAFFIC DANGER
CITED BY CHIEF

Proposes One-Way Parking On W.
State St. Between Ellsworth
And Howard Avenues

Chief of Police Ralph Stoffer indicated today that he would ask city council to amend the city's traffic ordinance to permit parking on only one side of W. State st. between Ellsworth and Howard avenues, where the street is barely wide enough to permit two cars to pass.

"Someday somebody is going to get killed as the result of an accident on that hill," the chief commented, "and then council will prohibit parking on both sides of the street."

Stoffer pointed out that lately traffic mishaps seem to be increasing at that point on W. State st. Motorists are having their cars damaged, but, luckily, no one has been injured seriously. A pedestrian, however, was sent to the hospital after he stepped in front of a car there a week ago.

Men Attend Dinner;
Program Presented

Edward Brooks of Sebring was arrested by Patrolman Nerr Gaunt on a charge of operating a car without a driver's license after his automobile and another, operated by Charles E. Craig of Canton, collided on W. State st., just west of Ellsworth ave., at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

Brooks forfeited $15 bond.

No one was injured, apparently, when machines driven by Donald H. Gardner of R. D. 3, Salem, and Chester Cope of the Georgetown road tangled at the corner of W. State st. and the Georgetown road at 4:25 p. m. Friday.

2 NAZI AIRMEN
DIE IN BATTLE
OVER SCOTLAND

One Wounded, Pilot Captured As Warplane Is Forced Down

BULLETS SPATTER

French Claim Proof That German Submarine Was Sunk

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 23.—Two German airmen were killed, one wounded and a Nazi pilot captured today in an aerial drama of the skies witnessed by hundreds of Scots near Edinburgh when British fighter planes engaged and forced down a German warplane.

The air ministry announced that a German aircraft which was attempting reconnaissance was forced down by our fighters this morning east of Dalkeith (about six and one half miles southeast of Edinburgh).

The invader apparently was headed for the strategic Firth of Forth, objective of previous German raids.

Display of Aerobatics

Immediately after the Nazi plane was sighted, British ships went aloft with a resulting rare display of aerobatics as the German pilot tried desperately to shake off his attackers.

"Finally the German came down on a hillside and struck a stone wall and even then the pilot would not give up," one witness said. "He tried to get his machine into the air again and ran along the rough ground for about a half mile before he had to stop."

An air raid alarm in the Firth of Forth area of Scotland lasted half an hour.

Machine gun bullets fell in the main street of one town and several spent bullets spattered a few yards from the police station.

The only warning given the town's inhabitants was the sound of the firing. Some residents said this was the second occasion on which raiders had been driven off without the alarm sirens sounding.

German Sub Sunk

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Proof of the sinking of a German submarine last Thursday was said by French military sources to have been established today coincident with semi-official announcement that French armed vessels and seaplanes had been particularly active.

Several direct attacks have been carried out and it appears one of these at least has been successful," the statement said.

Bodies of five German sailors and a German officer were reported found off the coast, establishing the French said, of destruction of the submarine which "apparently had been literally torn apart by the explosion of a depth bomb."

The location of the attack was not disclosed.

Salem Men Honored
By County 40 & 8

Fred Ludington of Salem was elected to the head office of the de la gare of Columbian county voltage No. 273, 40 & 8, of the American Legion at a meeting Friday night in East Liverpool.

A business meeting and program followed a dinner served by the ladies in the church.

W. P. Davis was named as vice president of the organization.

"As economy" was the subject of an interesting talk by S. N. Van Blaricom. Musical entertainment included violin selections by John H. Hundertmark, a vocal solo by Deborah Berry, accompanied by her sister, Priscilla, numbers by the Sunday school orchestra and group singing.

Raymond Thompson of Lisbon, retiring president of the group, presided during the business meeting. L. E. Beery was general chairman in charge of arrangements.

The next meeting on Jan. 21 will be a Father-Son banquet in the Wellsboro Christian church.

Plans are now under way for a joint installation of the Columbian, Mahoning, Trumbull and Jefferson county 40 & 8 voltages late in November at Peace Valley park.

Hearing

LISBON, Oct. 28.—James Pritchard of Pittsburgh was found not guilty of manslaughter in the second degree, in the traffic death of Maurice E. Sorg, of Pittsburgh, by a jury which deliberated but 20 minutes in common pleas court here Friday afternoon.

Taking the stand to aid Pritchard in his defense was Miss Erma Sorg of Pittsburgh, daughter of the victim's widow; Mr. Long of Pittsburgh, who was also a passenger in the car; Ed Hoffmaster, at whose tavern near the scene of the accident the men had stopped during the afternoon; a Mr. Layman who witnessed the crash shortly after the car driven by Leonard Holman, of East Palestine, had passed him as he drove westward on Route 14, and Mrs. Pritchard, the wife of the defendant.

Named as members of the executive committee, which also includes troop committee chairmen,

This announcement was made today for the benefit of members of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which are sponsoring the dinner and meeting. Members of these organizations can make reservations with R. S. McCulloch, Carl Wiltman and Dan Weber.

The dinner is for men only, but women who would like to hear the talk can go to the church following the dinner. Mr. Emeny will discuss the international situation.

Husking Title Won
By Henry Countian;
Rudibaugh Is Ninth

DELAWARE, Oct. 28.—Ohio's twin corn husking titles rested today with a pair of happy young stalwarts whose mud-spattered discarded clothing told how their wearers won in slippery, rain-drenched footing.

For John Feehan of Deshler, Henry county, it was a chance to represent the Buckeye state in the national standing corn husking contest in Kansas on Nov. 3.

Thirty-three weekend trips to the Salem cabin at the scout reservation were made during the past year, it was the climax of four years of practice in stripping the husks from ears of shocked corn. There is no national shock contest.

Feehan, ripped a net weight of 1,509.75 pounds of ears from the stalks, stripped them and tossed them into a wagon in 89 minutes. Passet's net husking was 1,072.25 pounds.

Dale Rudibaugh of Lisbon, Columbian county champion, finished ninth in the shocked corn contest. Eleven others trailed him.

Gets New Post

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28.—Eighteen per cent of all recruits enlisted under President Roosevelt's order to bring the army nearer its peace-time strength has come from the fifth corps area. Major Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis, area commander, said today. Composed of Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky, the area contains 12 per cent of the nation's total population.

Everett Rich of Salem was named assemblioner and Dr. R. T. Holzbach, medicine, of the organization.

Wilbur S. Mellingen of Leetonia has been appointed by Grand Chef De Gare Ralph Westerfield to the grand voyage office of de Sousa Grand de la Port, according to an announcement at last night's meeting.

Prosecuting Attorney Karl T.

Tobin, asked that the jurors consider carefully all evidence which they had submitted in the case and that they find the defendant guilty, thereby helping to make the highway clear of drunken drivers.

Attorney Lozier Caplan made a plea asking that the defendant be not crucified upon the incomplete evidence of the investigating officer, and stressed the testimony of Ralph Phillips, a state's witness, who, when cross examined, said Pritchard was driving upon his own side of the road with the left wheels slightly over the center line, but he was not "weaving." Defense counsel also brought out that testimony revealed there was plenty of room for passing on the north, or Holman's side of the road.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28.—Chester W. Ruth became director of advertising for Republic Steel Corp. today succeeding Stanley A. Knisley, resigned. A former Canton advertising executive, Ruth had been the corporation's assistant advertising manager since 1930.

Undoubtedly one of the busiest offices in the city, the local headquarters of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation received 71 new claims during September. Manager Arthur S. Johnson reported today. That was 29 per cent less than the previous month's total.

Average Check $11.44

The average check, in benefits for total unemployment, was $11.44, and the average for partial employment, $6.14.

Since January the Salem office has paid out a grand total of $125,638.90 in benefits, Johnson's records show.

Last month 3,563 visitations were registered at the office in the Pioneer building, some individuals coming two and three times to report on claims, etc.

REASON NO. 2

The American Legion poster for 1940 shows a typical World war veteran saying, "Thank God I am an American." In the background is the torch of the Statue of Liberty. Across the top of the poster is this admonition: Hold High The Torch of Freedom.

Each American has his own set of reasons for being thankful, but included in all of them is appreciation of freedom. It's No. 1 on every list of cherished privileges guaranteed in the United States. Right after it, in times like these, must be placed a reason that Americans neither talk about nor think about, ordinarily.

The most astonishing thing about the United States is the way it enables a vast population to live in harmony, despite geographic barriers, and differences in economic circumstances and interests at least as formidable as those that make peace in Europe impossible. Many skeptics were willing to bet 150 years ago that peace was impossible here too, despite the fact the United States was much smaller then.

Only one interruption, the Civil war, ever threatened to disrupt the union. There has been factionalism, regionalism and all kinds of trouble, but Americans have subdued the lust to kill someone on the other side of a line drawn by politicians. As Europe tenses itself for another orgy of slaughter, the United States is reminded that it alone of all the populated regions on earth has been blessed with the secret of peace—whatever it is.

SEA LAWYERS

While sea lawyers try to out-maneuver one another in the City of Flint proceedings, their clients in this country have settled the case out of court to their own satisfaction.

Americans are not going to get worked up because Germany, with an assist from Russia, snatched a ship flying their flag. When congress passes a revised neutrality law, ships flying American flags won't be permitted in combat zones. In other words, public opinion in the United States, together with the Roosevelt administration and an apparent majority in congress, concede that the City of Flint is not an issue.

Unimpressed by "solemn" quoting of international law, moreover, Americans are ready to admit that as far as they're concerned there ain't no such animal when the British and Germans square off to terrorize shipping. The British haven't seized an American ship yet, in the sense of putting on a prize crew, but they have impounded numerous ships flying the United States flag for carrying contraband.

Last but not least, Americans have learned by experience that contraband is anything a belligerent says it is. A vessel carrying peach fuzz to one of two belligerents is carrying contraband, in the other belligerent's opinion. If the peach fuzz weren't going to be used for something useful, no one would be taking the trouble to cart it across the ocean.

PROPAGANDA?

When propaganda's good enough to be deserving of the high hopes of its producers it can't be detected. Still just because it has been hard to spot in this war doesn't necessarily mean it has been Grade A in quality. Only evident effect of the propaganda presumably being dished up is a state of confusion, as far as the United States is concerned. Americans don't find themselves able so far to sympathize energetically with anybody. If sympathy is the goal of propagandists, then they must be falling down on the job.

This might be an illusion—part of the propaganda. It may be that streamlined propaganda isn't aimed at the masses, the way dictators aim the fulminations of the controlled press, but is highly selective. The object may be to condition the thinking of the influential few and let it be reflected on the thoughts of the impressionable many. Dropping leaflets on German cities wouldn't be a waste of time if the British could make one important convert to moderation in Adolf Hitler's circle of personal friends.

Whether this is being done or not, Americans have not been conscious as yet of propaganda. They hope it's because they were so well forearmed by forewarnings that propagandists decided it wasn't worth trying, but it's hard to be sure. It wasn't till after the World war was over that the insidious methods of propaganda were understood. Presumably, the technique of making people believe what isn't true has kept pace with improvements in all other branches of warfare.

STRING SAVER'S NIGHTMARE

Falling leaves make poets sad, children happy and householders busy. But what they do to string savers is to make them restless.

There are no comprehensible labels in mathematics to indicate the number of leaves that flutter to the ground each autumn. In total, leaves constitute one of the greatest sources of supply on earth.

Yet, man—who can think up almost anything—hasn't discovered anything to do with them, except rake them. Instinct, prompted by neatness, causes him to gather the leaves in a pile, but then he's flabbergasted.

The only thing that occurs to him in his puzzle is to burn them, salvaging a few to scatter about the shrubs. Surely, some higher destiny's in store for leaves than destruction by fire.

What about plastics? What about converting leaves into fuel? What about their nutritive value? What about someone at least claiming he has found use for old leaves and coming to take them away, gratefully? A string saver can't even bear to rake them up if it's only for the purpose of destroying them.

In Missouri a country pastor reports gifts of 400 dozen of eggs in the year past. From the laity, we presume.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, October 29

SUNDAY'S horoscope is contradictory. There is splendid promise for auspicious and happy personal activities, mainly in emotional, romantic, social or artistic affairs, but there also may be sudden upheaval, turbulence and devastating situations.

Those whose birthday it is may find their spiritual and subtle forces may be the means of offsetting and maneuvering difficult, baffling and peculiar matters that are suddenly precipitated.

A child born on this day, while having certain eccentric, violent and reckless tendencies, may also have a calm, calculating, mystical or spiritual inner nature to fall back on in devastating circumstances, probably in its love life.

For Monday, October 30

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a generally favorable and propitious state of affairs, providing utmost precaution is exercised in the handling of all manner of papers, writings and documents. In this have an eye to possible litigation. Romantic, emotional or social activities flourish.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of progress, happiness and prosperity, in both business and personal life, if they will be prudent with all writings, guarding against fraud and litigation.

A child born on this day may be talented, resourceful and fairly ambitious, although its social or sentimental life may overshadow its desire for accomplishment.

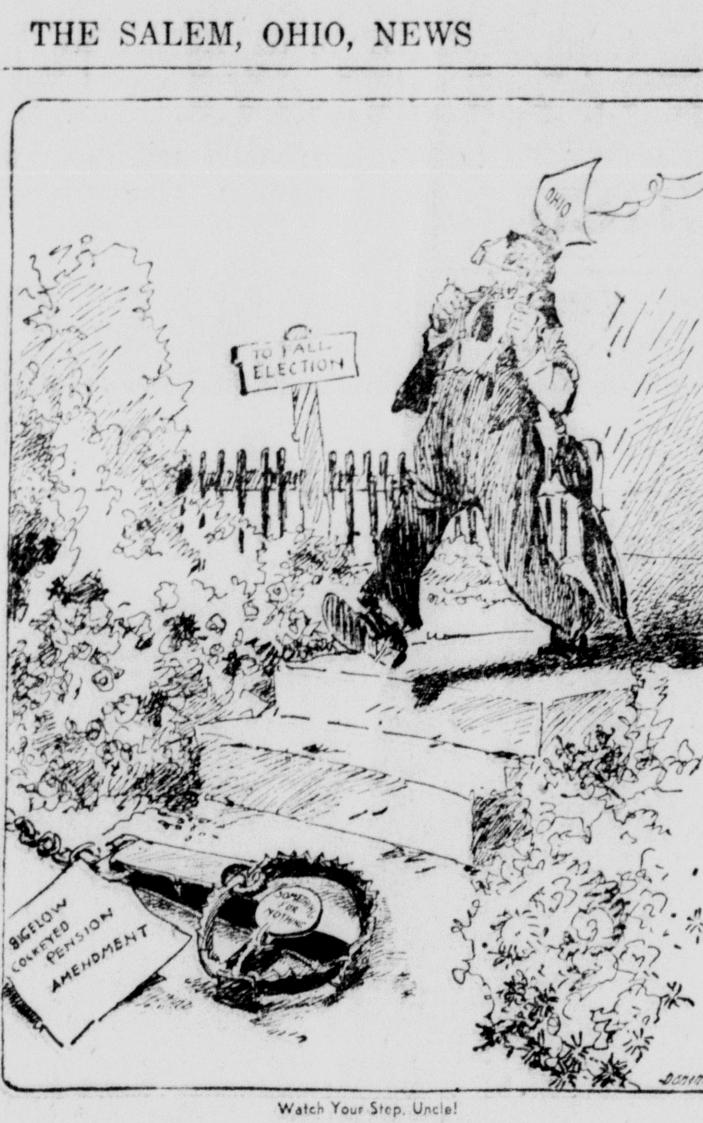

"Italians," says a Rome correspondent, "are delighted" with the decision for neutrality. "Mussolini at this moment probably has more genuine admiration, devotion and affection from his whole people than in his whole career." Now, look how mistaken that man was when he said his people just doted on war.

Under British postal regulations, you can get yourself mailed to any address on the island, though it's well to pick out a friendly postmaster to cancel the stamps.

Stalin may think twice before growing militant. Russian armies have not fared well when exposed to war. They go haywire too quickly.

Chuckle over this if you can: "The New Deal is a government of checks and balances. Thirteen million get the checks and the balance pay the bill."

What about plastics? What about converting leaves into fuel? What about their nutritive value? What about someone at least claiming he has found use for old leaves and coming to take them away, gratefully? A string saver can't even bear to rake them up if it's only for the purpose of destroying them.

REASON NO. 2

The American Legion poster for 1940 shows a typical World War veteran saying, "Thank God I am an American." In the background is the torch of the Statue of Liberty. Across the top of the poster is this admonition: Hold High The Torch of Freedom.

Each American has his own set of reasons for being thankful, but included in all of them is appreciation of freedom. It's No. 1 on every list of cherished privileges guaranteed in the United States. Right after it, in times like these, must be placed a reason that Americans neither talk about nor think about, ordinarily.

The most astonishing thing about the United States is the way it enables a vast population to live in harmony, despite geographic barriers, and differences in economic circumstances and interests at least as formidable as those that make peace in Europe impossible. Many skeptics were willing to bet 150 years ago that peace was impossible here too, despite the fact the United States was much smaller then.

Only one interruption, the Civil war, ever threatened to disrupt the union. There has been factionalism, regionalism and all kinds of trouble, but Americans have subdued the lust to kill someone on the other side of line drawn by politicians. As Europe tenses itself for another orgy of slaughter, the United States is reminded that it alone of all the populated regions on earth has been blessed with the secret of peace—whatever it is.

SEA LAWYERS

While sea lawyers try to out-maneuver one another in the City of Flint proceedings, their clients in this country have settled the case out of court to their own satisfaction.

Americans are not going to get worked up because Germany, with an assist from Russia, snatched a ship flying their flag. When congress passes a revised neutrality law, ships flying American flags won't be permitted in combat zones. In other words, public opinion in the United States, together with the Roosevelt administration and an apparent majority in congress, concede that the City of Flint is not an issue.

Unimpressed by "solemn quoting" of international law, moreover, Americans are ready to admit that as far as they're concerned there ain't no such animal when the British and Germans square off to terrorize shipping. The British haven't seized an American ship yet, in the sense of putting on a prize crew, but they have impounded numerous ships flying the United States flag for carrying contraband.

Last but not least, Americans have learned by experience that contraband is anything a belligerent says it is. A vessel carrying peach fuzz to one of two belligerents is carrying contraband, in the other belligerent's opinion. If the peach fuzz weren't going to be used for something useful, no one would be taking the trouble to cart it across the ocean.

PROPAGANDA?

When propaganda's good enough to be deserving of the high hopes of its producers it can't be detected. Still, just because it has been hard to spot in this war doesn't necessarily mean it has been Grade A in quality. Only evident effect of the propaganda presumably being dished up is a state of confusion, as far as the United States is concerned. Americans don't find themselves able so far to sympathize energetically with anybody. If sympathy is the goal of propagandists, then they must be falling down on the job.

This might be an illusion—part of the propaganda. It may be that streamlined propaganda isn't aimed at the masses, the way dictators aim the fulminations of the controlled press, but is highly selective. The object may be to condition the thinking of the influential few and let it be reflected on the thoughts of the impressionable many. Dropping leaflets on German cities wouldn't be a waste of time if the British could make one important convert to moderation in Adolf Hitler's circle of personal friends.

Whether this is being done or not, Americans have not been conscious as yet of propaganda. They hope it's because they were so well forearmed by forewarnings that propagandists decided it wasn't worth trying, but it's hard to be sure. It wasn't till after the World war was over that the insidious methods of propaganda were understood. Presumably, the technique of making people believe what isn't true has kept pace with improvements in all other branches of warfare.

STRING SAVER'S NIGHTMARE

Falling leaves make poets sad, children happy and householders busy. But what they do to string savers is to make them restless.

There are no comprehensible labels in mathematics to indicate the number of leaves that flutter to the ground each autumn. In total, leaves constitute one of the greatest sources of supply on earth.

Yet, man—who can think up almost anything—hasn't discovered anything to do with them, except rake them. Instinct, prompted by neatness, causes him to gather the leaves in a pile, but then he's flabbergasted.

The only thing that occurs to him in his puzzle is to burn them, salvaging a few to scatter about the shrubs. Surely, some higher destiny's in store for leaves than destruction by fire.

What about plastics? What about converting leaves into fuel? What about their nutritive value? What about someone at least claiming he has found use for old leaves and coming to take them away, gratefully? A string saver can't even bear to rake them up if it's only for the purpose of destroying them.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, October 29

SUNDAY'S horoscope is contradictory. There is splendid promise for auspicious and happy personal activities, mainly in emotional, romantic, social or artistic affairs, but there also may be sudden upheaval, turbulence and devastating situations.

Those whose birthday ita

Those whose birthday it is may find their spiritual and subtle forces may be the means of off-setting and maneuvering difficult, baffling and peculiar matters that are suddenly precipitated.

A child born on this day, while having certain eccentric, violent and reckless tendencies, may also have a calm, calculating, mystical or spiritual inner nature to fall back on in devastating circumstances, probably in its love life.

FOR MONDAY, OCTOBER 30

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a generally favorable and propitious state of affairs, providing utmost precaution is exercised in the handling of all manner of papers, writings and documents. In this have an eye to possible litigation. Romantic, emotional or social activities flourish.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of progress, happiness and prosperity, in both business and personal life, if they will be prudent with all writings, guarding against fraud and litigation.

A child born on this day may be talented, resourceful and fairly ambitious, although its social or sentimental life may over-shadow its desire for accomplishment.

"Italians," says a Rome correspondent, "are delighted" with the decision for neutrality. "Mussolini at this moment probably has more genuine admiration, devotion and affection from his whole people than in his whole career." Chuckle over this if you can: "The New Deal is a government of checks and balances. Thirteen million get the checks and the balance pay the bill."

Morning worship, 11; sermon.

The religious census of the world tells of the growth in numbers of the Protestant Church in these four hundred years. The strength of power and influence of this branch of the Holy Catholic Church cannot be denied. However, these truths are not the main elements of strength of the Churches of the sixteenth century Reformation. Strength comes from the emphasis upon personal and individual responsibility to God in matters of faith and life. We are to stand as individuals before God. Strength is found in the faith and trust in Jesus Christ as the complete and unrivaled Savior of the souls of humanity. This avoids confusion and makes for simplicity. Strength is secured in having the Holy Scriptures as the Word of God the final and undisputed foundation and authority for faith and practice."

Christian Science Society's Services

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science Society tomorrow.

The Sunday service is also broad- cast over station WCLE (610 kil.) in Cleveland the first and third Sundays of each month.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years is held at 9:30 a.m. A midweek service is held the first Wednesday in each month at the church at 7 p.m.

The Golden Text is: "Cast away from you all your transgressions, wherby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" (Ezekiel 18:31).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit; neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit . . . For every tree is known by its own fruit. For of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble bush gather they grapes." (Luke 6:43, 44).

The lesson sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

"Passions and appetites must end in pain. They are of few days, and full of trouble. Their supposed joys are cheats. Their narrow limits belittle their gratifications, and hedge about their achievements with thorns" (p. 538).

This society maintains a reading room at 135 South Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open daily, except Saturday, from 1:30 to 4 p.m. and on Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m.

The public is invited to attend all services and to visit the reading room.

Nazarene Church Services Listed

"The Man Between Two Kings" is the subject of the sermon which will be delivered by Rev. John D. Guy at the evening evan- gelistic service of the Church of the Nazarene tomorrow.

Services for the church are as follows:

9:45 a.m.—Sunday school.

11 a.m.—Worship.

12:30 p.m.—N. Y. P. S. meeting.

7:30 p.m.—Evanagelistic service.

Prayer meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

German Reformation services at 11 a.m.

The Church Must Speak

"In the great issues of the world the voice of the church must also be heard. If the church has a message it must be given. The war is sponsored by the radio, newspapers and a coterie of politicians" to drag America in, challenges the church to speak clearly and unmistakably. If here and there some clergymen or bishop, forgetting his office, sounds off "this is our war," his hysteria is not the voice of the Master. The church forgot its message once it learned its lesson. Today through the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ the voice of Protestantism is asserting itself.

Peace and not the sword, repentance and not arrogance is the burden of its message. The leaders of all Protestant denominations in America are reminding the congregations that our Christian battle front is not the Maginot line in France but every human heart where sin and selfishness assert themselves. Contrary to the world's organized propaganda for war the church must speak clearly and champion the cause of the Prince of Peace. We have much to repent of. We have sins and evils of such magnitude that any self-righteousness can hardly be an attitude for us to assume. Keep America out of war, that is the voice of the church and to that end are all Christians challenged."

When the glamor girl of college age takes a gay weekend off, smart simplicity is the watchword for her clothes. They may not be expensive but they are chic. Left is the perfect evening costume, consisting of handknit blue wool skirt and sweater, the latter trimmed with gold at sleeves and waist, and with a matching hat of wool and blue feathers. It is a Claire Potter design. The black dress, center, is an Ina Case model, is brightened with gold beaded trim and belt. And Anita Louise, right, has selected the gay and flattering three-piece ensemble for spectator sports wear. The swagger coat is of beige camel's hair, the parka hood is lined with cherry red and navy plaid to match the pleated skirt, and a cherry red fleece sweater is worn under the coat.

"REDHEADS ARE LUCKY" BY VERA BROWN

CHAPTER XXXII

Later, as the two drank their coffee and Handsome slept, Dr. Christian diagnosed the case as "Alcoholism, of course. But I wonder where he's been. He's half starved."

Meanwhile, Mike was saying to himself: "I can't leave him alone here. If I report in sick to the office, they might come here." Mike's cheeks flushed for she knew that Bob Kenyon would drive down at noon to see how she was.

"I'll get a nurse by the time you want to go to work" Dr. Christian promised.

Mike knew the risk she ran having Handsome in her apartment, but there seemed nothing to do about it at the moment. She and Dr. Christian talked it over. They agreed that Handsome should be in the country. They thought and planned.... Where could he go to recuperate?

The husky athlete was recovering rapidly. Two days later, Handsome told Mike about those two months he had been missing.

"At first, I was desperate. I thought you'd never want to see me again. Then, I guess, I just started drinking. I woke up in a little town up in Maine. I don't know how I got there, but I must have caught a ride on a 'freight.' His head sunk lower. "I didn't have a sou. They arrested me for vagrancy. Kept me in jail for 30 days."

"They didn't recognize you?" Mike held her voice steady.

"I don't shave and I wouldn't tell them anything about myself. When they let me go, I started right back to you.... I didn't have much to eat. I was scared I'd get arrested again. When I got here, that fellow was here." Tears came to Handsome's eyes. He was still weak and sick. She bent and kissed his forehead.

"Don't think anything more about it now."

Mike was in constant state of desperation. She hoped Bob would suspect something. She finally was forced to tell him that her brother was in town, ill at her apartment. She also told him Dr. Christian was taking care of him. Bob immediately tried to help and he almost drove Mike crazy.

When the Series playoff began in Detroit, Handsome listened to the ball game on the little radio in Mike's apartment. What he thought or what he felt he never told anybody. It seemed to be a turning point in his life.

When Mike came home that evening he was in bed. During the night, she could hear him pacing up and down the floor in his room. But this seemed to be his right. She could do nothing for him.

Next night when she came home from work, Dr. Christian was with Handsome. "I think we've got the answer!" he said.

"To Larry's future?" Mike asked.

"That's it." Dr. Christian was beaming. "My dad lives up in Northern Michigan. Near Iron Mountain. He's got a small farm. Just putters about. I think he will take Handsome for the winter."

Handsone met her eyes squarely and smiled: "I'm hitting the comeback trail hard, Skipper."

"How can we get him out of town?" Mike asked.

"In driving through next week, with Mrs. Christian. He can go with us." After the doctor had gone, Handsome seemed happy indeed.

"Just give me another chance, Skipper." His face clouded. "I'll need a little money."

"We'll get that, somehow," Mike assured him.

"I can't take any more from you, Mike."

"You won't have to."

Mike went to Wish Malone the next night. "You've been a grand friend, Wish. I need money badly. There's sickness in the family. I want you to... sell my ring."

She held out the diamond which Handsome had given her that first summer. Wish knew quite a lot about diamonds. Ball players generally do. They like to buy them.

"I thought you might know one of the younger boys who'd like a stone cheap."

"Why don't you just borrow on it?" Wish asked.

"Because I'll need more than that. Besides, I'd never want to wear it again. It's better to sell it."

Wish's face had a wry grin on it. "There's a rookie pitcher in Nekark that wants to pick up a good diamond. You know, young Benson." Both Mike and Wish knew quite well that Benson was one of the "hopes" being developed to fill Handsome's place.

"Tell him he can have the ring for $400. It's worth $600, at least."

"Nothing from Handsome?" Wish asked as she was leaving. "We've got to hear some time."

Mike dropped her head. was silent. She hated to deceive Wish. But it was best. Handsome had to prove himself to all of them! And he would, she believed.

Dr. Christian was to leave town three days later. Wish telephoned Mike at her office and sent the money for her. He had managed to wangle $400 from Benson.

Mike hurried home that night to cook dinner. It would be their last evening together for many months.

When she came in, she tossed the roll of bills which Wish had given her into Larry's lap.

"I told you we'd get money."

"Where'd you get it, Skipper?" Handsome asked.

"Your ring," she explained.

He sat looking up at her for a moment. Then he pulled her down into his arms.

"I don't care so much for myself, but it's for you!" he mumbled. "We could have been sitting on top of the world. I must have been crazy."

He looked at the money again. "Some day you'll have a finer ring."

"That's over, Larry."

"It isn't. It can't be." He paused.

"It's queer about that ring. The first big row I ever had with Iris came, his letters were as glowing as the colors of the woods up there. "I'm working a little each day. Dad Christian is going to teach me to use snowshoes. If you were here everything would be perfect. I don't know that I ever care to see you."

Mike told him that his father had paid Handsome's most pressing bills in New York City.

"As soon as I'm settled, I'll write to dad. Maybe he can come up north with me for a while." Regan walked restlessly around the apartment. "I'm so ashamed, Mike. I'm not going to ask any promises of you until I make good. Mike, but..... Iris and I are through!" He paused. "I know how you feel about divorce. My father, your mother.... What a mess I made of everything!"

"Let's forget that and look ahead. I don't want you going away in such a mood." She added, "You know, if you ever need me, Larry. I'll always be your friend."

"But that was impossible. When Bob Kenyon away, Mike had stay close to her desk. They were very busy in the office, for most of the 'hardest working' executives were on winter vacations.

Mike sent Handsome some books and magazines for his Christmas gift, and he liked that.

February the baseball world began to wake up again. Spring training was just around the corner. When the boys started moving south for their Florida training, Mike subscribed for a New York daily and Sunday paper, and sent them to the Christian farm. Sir knew Handsome would want every detail he could get about As Barnes and the gang, as well as other teams. But he never mentioned the subject in his letters.

Kenyon came home with a shipboard romance, a Ruth Elton, who lived in New Jersey. He insisted that Mike have dinner with him and Ruth, for he wanted Mike to see what she thought of his new heart interest. Ruth was a charming brown-haired girl who sunbathed beautifully, like a piece of gorgeous old silk. She wore a smart spring suit under her handsom coat, and Mike felt shabby and old by comparison.

Barnes and the gang, as well as other teams. But he never mentioned the subject in his letters.

Mike held her voice steady. "Send my letters to Dr. Christian. He'll mail them on to me from the hotel. They might watch my mail."

Dr. Christian was waiting down stairs with the car. Handsome took Mike in his arms for a moment. Neither of them could speak. Then he left her, standing in the door of her apartment. He did not trust himself to look back as he went down stairs. Handsome had gone.

Things were no longer the same between Bob Kenyon and Mike. He seemed to accept his fate. Mike knew that the people at the office were gossiping about it. Bob was going around with some of his Park Avenue friends.

People's Commissar Kuznetsov, chief of the Soviet navy, is shown during maneuvers in the Black Sea, which the Soviets consider their private lake. Passage through the Dardanelles into the Sea may be one of Great Britain's benefits from the mutual assistance pact signed by the Allies and Turkey. Soviet may object.

Lessons Go On, Even In War

Children kneel on the floor and use the chairs as desks in the Lady Chapel of St. Mary's Church, Leeds, as the clergy conduct lessons for some of the few children who have not been evacuated from the English industrial city. Schools were closed when thousands of children were moved into the country as a precaution against air raids.

Tiso Is President

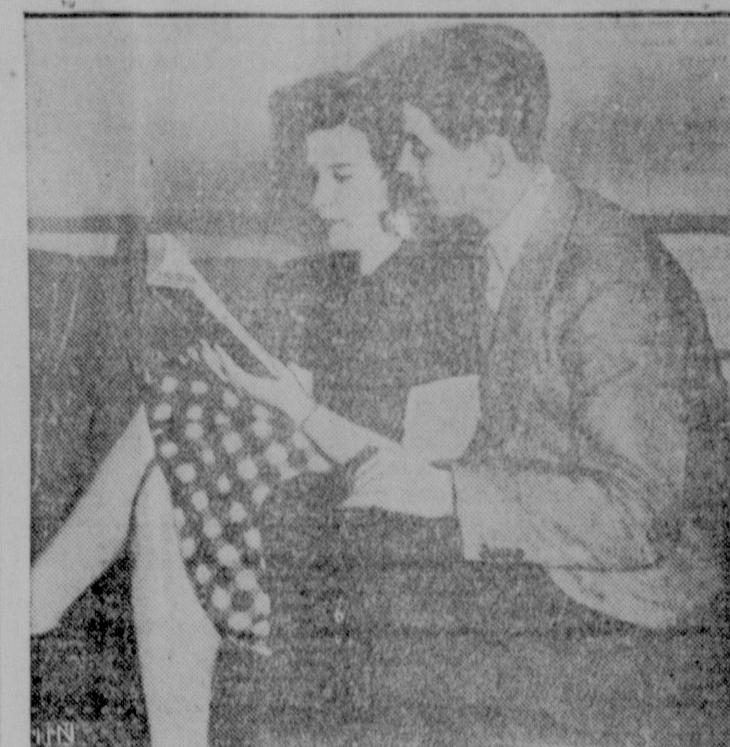

In an election in Slovakia, the Rev. Joseph Tiso, a Catholic priest, was unanimously elected president of Slovakia by the parliament. Prior to this he was premier.

LANBUCKLE Calif.—Ira Wesner, farmer, whose hobby is violin making, has just turned out his two hundredth hand-carved violin. He has the blueprint of a Stradivarius to work from, and uses cypress and English walnut as his favorite woods. All three of his children are accomplished violinists and all taught by him.

DOVER, Mass.—Sharp-shooting citizens could earn money here from 1783 to 1841 by hunting crows. Old town records uncovered by the WPA historical records survey show the bounty on each crow ranged from 6d. (about 12 cents) in the early years to 20 cents in 1798.

After Criticism of FDR

Senator Bennett Champ Clark (left), of Missouri, shakes hands with Senator Alexander Wiley, of Wisconsin, following Clark's neutrality debate address in which he charged that President Roosevelt was guilty of an unneutral act in having his picture taken with a pastor who had prayed for the triumph of England. Wiley announced he, too, would vote to retain embargo.

After 535 Hours in Air

Kelvin Baxter (left), 23, and Robert McDaniels, 25, are supported by Earl Lukes (center), head of the ground crew, after the two young fliers landed with a new unofficial endurance record for light planes. They remained in the air over Muncie, Ind., 535 hours and 49 minutes.

Western Reserve Eleven Slips Again; O. Northern, Marietta Gain Victories

Once-Proud Redcats Tied By Lowly Cincinnati; Ries, Crisci Aggravate Old Injuries, May Be Lost For Remainder Of Season

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28—Western Reserve, one of Ohio's preseason football favorites, slipped another step downward on the ladder of mediocrity today.

The once-proud Red Cats, already beaten by Ohio university and Baldwin-Wallace, battled to a scoreless deadlock with Cincinnati here last night in one of the state's three games.

In the other tussles, both Ohio conference games, Marietta edged Denison, 7 to 6, at Marietta and Ohio Northern stopped Capital at Columbus, 6 to 0.

Reserve, gaining 176 yards by rushing for 10 first downs, threatened to score several times, but always was repulsed by a stout Bearcat line. Cincinnati's best chance to tally came early in the game when Halfback Tom Lonchar attempted a field goal from the 23-yard line. The kick went wide. His punting, however, was a big factor in keeping the Clevelanders away from the goal line.

Johnny Ries, crack Red Cat back, and Frank Crisci, veteran tackle, aggravated old injuries in the battle and probably will be out of action the rest of the season.

Capital, previously undefeated in conference play, fell before the Polar Bears when the second-period aerial attack brought a touchdown on a pass from Quarterback Keel to Halfback Novak. Northern later went to the Luthersans' 10. Capital passed as far as the Northern eight-yard line in the closing minutes.

Extra Point Wins

Our Mr. Bill White (who comes from Colorado and should know better) wrote yesterday that one of the rodeo gals pitched a calf right on its mutton chops . . . waa! now, she might have tossed that calf on its veal chops. But mutton? Not on you ham hock, podner?

Today's Guest Star

John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News: "President Hutchins of the U. of Chicago, thinks his ball players did fine against Michigan last week, probably because of 'em came through alive."

Lou Salica has up and claimed the bantamweight title. (But our go to Cleveland's George Pace . . . U. of Missouri gets all its football centers from Kirkwood High school down in St. Louis county . . . Abner Doubleday who invented baseball, has a grand nephew playing football for Syracuse.)

MINNEAPOLIS—Eddie Wenstrom, 181, Edmonton, Alta., outpointed Arne Anderson, 199, Minneapolis (10).

BUCKS BATTLE CORNELL TEAM IN HEADLINER

Footing At Columbus Reported Slippery After Three-Day Rain

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28—Ohio State university's huge stadium was the cynosure of a nation's football eye today as the Bucks and Cornell, both unbeaten and untied, collided before some 60,000 fans in a game scheduled to jolt one from the gridiron glory road.

The footing, after a three-day rain, was slippery.

The Bucks had a slight edge in weight.

Coach Carl Snavely of the invading Big Red moaned that his boys "didn't have a chance."

But the downtown quarterbacks of Columbus, with a weather eye on Cornell's three straight wins, rated the game a tossup.

Rumors had it that Cornell, its players keyed to top pitch for the important struggle, had a bag of tricks ready to toss at the confident bucks. Snavely, in barring Ohio newspapermen from yesterday's final practice, while allowing all eastern series to attend, did little to squelch the report that he had something up his sleeve in addition to his arm.

Schmidt Hunts

Coach Francis Schmidt of the Bucks, while Snavely worried about Ohio's weight and the condition of the field, went duck hunting yesterday. He returned just in time to put his squad through limbering up exercises.

Whoa, Thar!

Our Mr. Bill White (who comes from Colorado and should know better) wrote yesterday that one of the rodeo gals pitched a calf right on its mutton chops . . . waa! now, she might have tossed that calf on its veal chops. But mutton? Not on you ham hock, podner?

Johnson explains that registering with the employment unit of the office saves workers the time and effort of tramping streets in search of jobs, and while the service cannot guarantee the applicant a job, it will greatly increase his opportunities.

Urge To Keep Active

Workers who keep their registrations active by calling at the office regularly will be referred to any job they are qualified to fill.

Furthermore, there is no charge for this service to either employers or applicants.

Johnson's chief "headache" at the moment is the apparent lack of domestics. He has on file at the present time the names of numerous persons who want domestic help and offer fairly attractive wages.

But, apparently, there is a shortage of domestic help in Salem or else a number of women and girls have failed to take advantage of the employment service.

Appeal Decision

FREMONT, Oct. 28—Attorneys for Mrs. Grace Slessman, Clyde banker's widow sentenced recently to 20 days in jail on a contempt of court citation, said today they would appeal decision by Judge A. V. Baumann denying her a new trial. Mrs. Slesman was cited after she had been charged with talking to a juror during the first degree murder trial of Mrs. Velma Baker Fink, who was acquitted.
